From the Providence Journal. Mr. Taft does well to decide that he will make no speeches during the campaign except such brief remarks as he may address to visiting delegations. The dignity of the Presidential office is certainly not enhanced when a candidate goes about the country begging for votes. It is well that he should express himself clearly upon the issues of the campaign, but having done this a judicious silence is more impressive than a voluble self assertio No one now has any doubt as to Mr. Tatt's opinions or his qualifications for the highest office in the gift of the people. It is too much to kope that his chief op-ponent will imitate his reticence.
